WHAT MILADY WEARS
 The unsettled season of fashion through which we have just passed has resulted in a most bewildering variety of clothes being worn, and at almost any dancet or tea one can distinguish the tendencies of at least a half dozen periods in the gowns and hats of the guests, be they dressed as extremely smart or otherwise. And on the dancing floor of an afternoon one may observe the widest range of styles, from the simple, good-looking English walking suit, which seems to be particularly favored, to the subtly draped gown of crepe or full ruffled frock of fluffy chiffon.

One of the season's debutantes, Miss Hope Beale, has been wearing an afternoon costume of mirlaine velvet, which proves most becoming. The skirt, which is quite wide and short, has the new circular flare, and over this is worn a hip-length jacket, slashed with collar and cuffs of white fox fur. With this costume is worn a small close-fitting turban of white velvet.

A smart costume of black broadcloth is being worn by Mrs. William Wilkins Carr. The skirt has a full tunic and over this is worn a coat with the new full circular flare, which is edged with a wide band of Australian opossum. The extremely high military collar and the tiny round muff is also of the opossum. The matron's hat is of black velvet, trimmed with small and close fitting, trimmed solely with two loops of black satin ribbon.

Mrs. Ronald Barlow looks well in a trolleur of sage green tweed, the skirt severely plain and the jacket belted in at the waistline. With this Mrs. Barlow wears fawn colored spats and a chamois hat, lace of trimming but for the leather band around the low crown.

CHARITY BALL PROCEEDS

Beneficiaries to Receive $2300 Each—Next Ball December 9.

Following a meeting of the Executive Committee of the Charity Ball yesterday afternoon, it was announced by J. Franklin McFadden, chairman, that the unusually large proceeds of the 35th annual charity ball last December resulted in the distribution of $2000 each to the four beneficiaries, or a total of $8000. The institutions were the surgical ward of the University Hospital, the maternity department of the Jefferson Hospital, the Rush Hospital for Consumptives and the Children's Hospital.

The total receipts of the ball last December were $15,253.22, and the expenses $534.33, leaving net proceeds of $14,718.89. Deducting the $2000 distributed, the surplus balance is $12,718.89. The proportion of expenses to gross receipts is unusually favorable for a charitable affair. In 1912 each beneficiary received $1250, so the increase this year for each is $150.

Thursday, December 9, was decided upon as the date for this year's Charity Ball. It was also announced that all local charitable organizations desirous of being beneficiaries of the 36th Annual Charity Ball should forward their applications not later than April 20 to the corresponding secretary, Mrs. S. Naudain Duer, 1216 Pine street.

The bylaws of the Charity Ball provide "that an institution or a society, to participate in the proceeds of the ball, must be one established and maintained for the care and treatment of the sick or suffering and located in Philadelphia or within 10 miles of the city limits, and must have an annual income of at least $5000. No institution may participate oftener than once every three years, but separate departments of an institution are considered as being separate institutions."
